IT'S YOUR MONEY

Too often the citizens, preoccupied with making a living, do not take time to inform himself about his government. Yet history teaches that democracy survives only as long as the people take an active part in the making of governmental decisions.

One-third of the average citizen's income goes to pay various kinds of taxes. That makes government his biggest cost.

Businessmen who spend many sleepless nights trying to figure how to cut unit production costs by a fraction of a cent, or reduce overhead by a few dollars, are prone to ignore one of their greatest single factors—taxation.

Husbands and wives perspire and argue over family budgets but are unwilling to pay any attention to one item—government—which is now costing them more food, clothing and medical care, according to the Citizens Public Expenditure Survey of New York.

Once started on the path of growth, many government agencies are like Topsy—they just grow whether there is any reason or not.

Citizens interest in government is sorely needed now. With a sound economy, and that means government on a solid financial base, we will pay a dear price.

THE PUBLIC DESERVE FACTS

The increasingly bitter debate over the proper method of providing health services to the aged has led, inevitably and unfortunately, to some widely-held misconceptions.

Many believe, for instance, that most elderly people now lack any economic protection if illness strikes. But the truth is that 53 percent of all persons over 65 have health insurance of some kind, that this age group is buying health insurance faster than any other group, and by 1965 more than 75 percent of the aged who want coverage will have it.

Many also believe that most elderly people are sorely lacking in financial resources. But the truth is that the economic status of those past 65 is, in many respects, better than that of any other age group. For example, compared with any other age group more of the elderly own their own homes, mortgage free, have lower tax liabilities, higher liquid assets and fewer family responsibilities.

This is not an argument against providing aid to those who need it—and the Kerr-Mills law, passed by the last Congress, is designed to do that, under a sound federal-state cooperative system. But it is an argument against providing aid in a shotgun fashion to all the people of one age category whether or not they need it, and whether or not they want to pay for it in higher taxes. And this is precisely what the Social Security approach would do—at a potentially astronomical cost.

Too many of the facts have been obscured thus far.

Uncle Dan from Doolie Says:

Dear Mister Editor:

As a general rule, them plants we git from the Department of Agriculture don't call for deep meditation. They're just plain out in a while we'll git one that will stir up a little thinking.

For instane, the one I got last week was telling about a bank in Georgia where the other day where power vehicles on the farm has replaced 20 million horses in the last 35 years, saving 70 million acres of hay that used to be needed to feed these horses.

Things are changing fast in agriculture in this country and sometimes I wonder if them Congressmen that's busy extending the New Frontier has took due note of these changes and made any plans for the future.

And I see by the papers where a new invention in school houses has been noted. A school in Michigan is boarding up the windows for next year. They claim this will keep the young students from getting out after school. I think Johnny can't read well enough to understand what's going on in school.

Federal Employee Wages

Pay More For Quality-Less Quantity
H. Congress is to give pay raises to Federal employees, a matter that is presently under consideration. It should reduce the cost by reducing the number of employees through normal attrition and by rigid limitation on the number of new jobs created.

This was suggested today in a report prepared for 30 member State Chambers of Commerce by the Council of State Chamber of Commerce. It was signed by Eugene F. Rinta, director of research.

In view of the fact that employment in the Executive Branch has ballooned by more than 100,000 in the last 18 months, the Council saw "no great problem" in financing a moderate pay increase by reduction of personnel. This point in the report was followed by the crytic observation:

"It would be a wise and unequivocal directive of its Congress."

The "normal attrition" that the Council report suggested for reducing the Federal payroll would be achieved through filling of vacancies that occur through resignations, retirements and death. The Council found "ample precedent" for the use of this method. It was followed by the Eisenhower Administration after three federal pay increases.

The new job losses which the Council report would likely impose are proposed in the 1963 budget. The budget calls for an additional 88,600 jobs beyond those which the Administration added to the rolls between January 31, 1961 and May 31, 1962.

Noting pressure from Federal employee organizations for much more substantial increases in the lower grades, the President proposes the Council study concurred in an official finding that in the lower grades Federal employees generally are paid as well or better than their counterparts in private industry and other non-Federal employment. Mr. Rinta observed:

"There is no evidence to indicate that Federal salaries in the lower grades are inadequate to retain trained workers and that the slight rise in the cost of living since the last Federal pay raise of July 1, 1960 does not warrant increases greater than proposed by the President for them."

The Rinta report also pointed out that Congress could readily

Army National Guard's Mobilization Termed 'Most Successful' in History

WASHINGTON—Now that the Army National Guard's "Mobilization" is coming to an end—now that the active service members have had time to indoctrinate themselves in the functions of the reserve forces in over 500,000 people across the country—what were the results? What were the lessons learned? What were the strengths and weaknesses? What were the National Guardsmen and Reservists, anyway? What did they do? What did they become truly combat-ready?

The answer from one high-ranking officer is that it was the most successful mobilization in the history of the National Guard. General Donald W. McGowen, Chief of the National Guard Bureau, said:

"I think if there is to be accomplished, it must be a directive of the Commandant of the Corps of Engineers."

The men responsible are Dr. James F. Hearn, Associate Professor of Pediatrics at Tufts University School of Medicine and Assistant Pediatrician-in-Chiefs at the Boston Floating Hospital for Infants and Children, and his associate in both institutions, the Tufts-New England Medical Center, Dr. Harvey Chernoff.

Baby's Heart Now Tested Easier-Better

New heights of accuracy in electrocardiograms for babies and young children have been achieved, the Heart Association of Palm Beach and Martin Counties says.

The Heart Fund-sidied research has also yielded another major dividend: it was removed the discomfort involved in the usual method of taking an electrocardiogram in an infant.

The men responsible are Dr. James F. Hearn, Associate Professor of Pediatrics at Tufts University School of Medicine and Assistant Pediatrician-in-Chiefs at the Boston Floating Hospital for Infants and Children, and his associate in both institutions, the Tufts-New England Medical Center, Dr. Harvey Chernoff.

They accomplished it with a light-as-a-feather silver electrode which replaces the conventional adhesive tape and suction cup, and used the tiny electrode as the basis of a tiny circuit in which the materials cost only about 10 cents.

The new technique is adaptable to use in small as well as large hospital units.

Advanced diagnostic and surgical techniques have provided long forward strides in the detection and correction of congenital heart disease in the newborn and very young. With them, however, developed the need for completely reliable electrocardiographic tracings.

For years, however, this has been difficult or impossible in babies and young children who dislike the procedure and fuss through it.

Little research had been done in the field for at least a decade before Drs. Kreibich and Chernoff turned their attention to it.

The type of electrode long used among the very young is about three-quarters of an inch in diameter. This has to be moved frequently on the chest and it often leaves a red welt in its wake. More important, its use makes it difficult to manipulate the tiny patient, who usually resists it.

The doctors, working with a commercial medical-equipment firm, reasoned that the minute silver electrodes used to take electrocardiograms might work as well.

They developed a nine-lead device which is taped on the baby's chest in predetermined positions and involves no discomfort whatever. The result is that the baby, instead of crying and squirming throughout the test, usually enjoyed his pacifier, or sometimes even napped. The result, tracings even though the electrodes were switched to current leads instead of moving the electrodes. It also takes materially less time.

The technique now has been used on hundreds of babies and children, 60 to 12 months old. This is typical of research aided by the Heart Fund.

BIT THE BEACH—Jeeps and tanks of the mobilized 15th Armored Cavalry Regiment of the West Virginia National Guard roar down the ramp of a landing craft at Ft. Miles on the Delaware coast. The swiftness with which the 15th became combat-ready is due in part to its place in the Army's elite Strategic Army Corps (STRAC).

It was a grueling experience, not soon to be forgotten by the members of these units.

At Fort Lewis, Washington, the 40th Armored was challenged in the dirt and mud with rugged terrain, extreme weather and through three mobilizations himself. His accomplishments included commanding a small cavalry regiment through the Normandy invasion, commanding the 1st Cavalry Division, and guiding the entire 70,000-man Army and Air National Guard units to combat-readiness and fruitfulness of its existence.

To see how well the Guard did in this mobilization, General McGowen said recently, "We have had to go back to the days of the Civil War to find two companies that were called to active duty: the 13th Infantry Division of the Army and the 1st Cavalry Division of the Cavalry of the Texas Guard."

It was a grueling experience, not soon to be forgotten by the members of these units.

Forty-Eight Enjoy Attending Bible School At Osceola

Bible School at Osceola Nursery had a splendid attendance of 48 during July 23-July 31. Fourteen of the students had perfect attendance and nine only missed one day. The average record present was 33. The average attendance was 33. The school was held daily from 9 to 11 a.m.

The school was under the able direction of Wilbur Rittenhouse and teachers were Fred Grade, Mrs. Ruthie Evans, Mrs. Janette Pearson; 2nd Mrs. Benny Geesee, Mrs. Jerry Parson; 3rd Glenn Kipp, Alice Hy stop; 4th Mrs. Abby Davis; 5th and 6th, Mrs. Wilbur Rittenhouse; 7th Clark LaCoste.

Bud Martin had charge of recreation throughout the morning.

The offering which the children brought each morning was used to buy articles to put in health kits to be sent to children in another country.

The Bible School is proud and grateful of each teacher who gave so much time and effort so willingly and for the nice choice of religious books from the public library, which teachers had for resource materials. To the children who came so regularly and worked so hard with their teachers the school is specially grateful.

Stetson Professor Finds Society Textbooks Wanting In Religion

College textbooks in sociology need not give religion anywhere near its proper treatment and place little significance on its role in society, according to Dr. Sidney B. Denman, chairman of Stetson University's sociology department.

In the summer issue of the Stetson Letter, quarterly university publication, Denman criticizes college textbooks in sociology texts and finds them wanting.

For example, he found that only two of them imply that the authors believe that religion is directed toward an actual supernatural deity.

Denman also found that most or noncommittal in their position on the reality of God. Denman says, and the remaining two give the distinct impression that the authors believe that religion is merely a concept dependent upon personal needs and refers to no real truth.

Denman made his study because as he puts it, one of the vital functions of a church-related university (Stetson is Florida's Baptist University) is to provide a foundation of scientific research to the commitments of the Christian faith.

The Stetson professor has been concerned about the inadequacy of college sociology texts for some time. In consequence, he has completed an extensive list of references on the sociology of religion which is available for public use.

Plan to come and hear Rev. Crawford speak at South Bay

Rev. Lowell Crawford will fill the pulpit next Sunday in the absence of the pastor, Rev. Alvin A. Penton. Rev. Crawford is a ministerial student at the University of Miami and a member of the Olympia Baptist Church in Miami. He is married and has one child.

Religion is typically defined by individual sociology texts, particularly those which have traditionally entrenched pattern of beliefs about the unknown or supernatural, a body of ethical propositions concerning proper conduct, and a collection of social institutions expressing beliefs and standards.

Most authors try to find a completely naturalistic framework and explanation for most of the phenomena traditionally associated with religion, he says.

50000 Scriptures For Guatemala

The American Bible Society will provide half million copies of the New Testament for distribution in Guatemala in house-to-house visitation programs to be undertaken later this year in connection with a nationwide campaign and explanation for most of the phenomena traditionally associated with religion, he says.

Buy and Save!Hire Good Help!"Tain't So - Tiz So, Too" Say Old Men While National Legislation Suffers

I have been seriously concerned about the conflict which has existed since April between the Senate and the House Committee on Appropriations. The Committee first demanded that the Senate agree to have half of the conference on appropriations bills in the House wing of the Capitol. Later, it extended its demand so that House members should serve as chairman of both of these conferences. The Senate committee replied that it would be agreeable to these changes if the Senate would agree to have all bills originate in the Senate, take much less time, and cannot be foreseen, whereas as the four times longer roll calls in the House are rarer and are usually fixed in advance by the rules under which a bill is considered.

The position of the House has been to insist on retaining part of the tradition relating to the origin of all appropriations bills while insisting that the Senate should retain other parts of the tradition relating to the place of chairmanship of the conferences. I personally think that appropriations matters could be handled more smoothly with half of the bills originating in the Senate, since the delay in clearing appropriations bills is greater with every passing year. I hope for an early solution of this controversy.

Incidentally, it may be of interest to note that the members of the House claim to have an exclusive Constitutional right to originate appropriations bills, that they referred this question to their own Judiciary Committee in 1881. They also have a long history of reporting from such Committees, but to one vote, that the Senate and House have equal rights to originate appropriations bills. Again in 1884 the subject came up with the same result. The House has never repudiated the action of its Judiciary committee.

There has been good reason for this long-standing custom. In the House of 437 members, each one has generally just one committee and thus has much time for the hearings during which the bills are developed. Although the actual production of bills is much slower than formerly because of the great growth of the country and of national activities.

Charles Tommy Lawson is home on a 14 days leave visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Lawson, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Commissioner Doyle Conner, in his weekly "The Farm Front" says:

Communism has failed to make Marxism work. Every Communist country is in trouble. Red China and Cuba are familiar. The failures are all of a pattern. They have suddenly become so obvious that you wonder how much longer Moscow and Peking can bluff the rest of the world.

U. S. News and World Report summarizes the situation beautifully: "Don't underestimate this food crisis facing Khrushchev and Communism. It is the worst setback Khrushchev has faced since he became No. 1 Red."

Time magazine makes this pungent comment: "The revolution of rising expectations has not been satisfied by Communism in any of its countries."

The big meaning of Russia's food troubles is that Communists are in an ironic fix: They are materialists who are bungling materialism."

While Russia has had to boost food prices sharply, we in America are faced with the problem of what to do with too much food. A shortage of Russian dairy products brought a price boom to butter to nearly $2 a pound. At the same time, a current report estimates the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Donald, Best-All-Round Participant (14-up).

Mrs. McDonald, for whom the park has been named, was presented a silver dollar by Mr. Kirchman for "her cooperation personal interest, participation everybody in line and providing equipment for kids to play with."

Following award of the winners in the tournament an ice cream party was enjoyed by parents turned out for the event. This ended the six weeks of fun and recreation for Belle Glade children.

which confronted the state in 1958. Both the tourist and agricultural sectors were hit.

"Our reserve fund, which served as a cushion to meet unexpected conditions, was nearly depleted at the end of the 1957-58 biennium. It probably would have wiped out if the Cabinet and Board of Control had not ordered a general retrenchment of spending by all state agencies. As it was, the carry over into the 1959-61 biennium was only $1,140,521, the lowest since 1949-50."

"Gross sales in the lumber and building materials industry were up 12 percent and household furnishings 24 percent. Gross sales for furniture stores in Florida during the first nine months of fiscal year 1961-62 as compared with the same period of the previous year.

"The Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta reported consumer sales in the Sixth Federal Reserve District for April showed an increase in same period of the previous year. The change became evident with the January collections, which reflected a good holiday season, and continued to improve as the tourist season progressed."

"Florida's reported revenue needed from sales tax collections during fiscal 1962-63 is $14,000,000, or one-half percent over the same period of the previous year.

"We are going to put an impetus in the national economy, which subsequently will stimulate Florida business to help us make the estimate," Green said.

"Revival of the building industry in Florida is a fact, as to whether we make our goal, provided, of course, we have another good tourist year. The Florida Construction Review reported March topped

Sun To Cool Homes Say U of Fla. Engineers

The rays of Florida's summer sun may soon be harnessed to air-condition homes, says a team of University of Florida engineers.

"And," they quip, "the hotter the sun, the cooler it will be."

The professors — Frank M. Flanagan, Dr. Erich Farber, and graduate student Louis Lopez-martinez — developed a model for a three-ton air-conditioning unit capable of cooling an 1,800 to 2,000 square foot house depending upon structure and insulation.

Eighteen months in the making, the team created a model of a final test, the air-conditioner uses the sun as the source of energy instead of gas or electricity used in conventional cooling systems.

47 Years Married

37 Years In Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy M. Lane are taking particular note of August 1st, for it marks the 37th anniversary of their marriage. That they were married in a south Georgia community near the Florida line — Lake Park.

Thirty-seven of these years have been spent in Florida, almost continually, and a majority of those years in the Glades since '35.

An acute arthritic condition interferes with Mrs. Lane's indulging in rigorous exercise, but she is fully appreciative of the kind of time and is full of pride and satisfaction of a Grandmother.

"Pappy" and two boys may be found daily in the Machine Shop bearing the "Son's" of the family making that "old mousetrap" for farmers of the Glades.

first known "Orphan's Home" for migrant agricultural labor's children.

A "Nursery" set up in the old Legion Hall, by community effort, became home for the kids for the week while their children were left for the week.

The Doctor participated in community affairs, was an ardent golfer, and helped carry the community through its formative era, his practice in the town of Chatham, Ontario, Canada. Dr. White received his degree in doctor and medical surgery at University of Western Ontario, served at St. Joseph's Hospital in London, Ontario for two years, then the Canadian Army, he was Captain and served as surgeon in France and Germany in World War I. After the war he was on the staff of the Harper Hospital, Detroit, as chief surgeon for 4 and one-half years.

Coming to Florida in 1926 with his mother, he interned at Tampa Municipal Hospital one year, and took up practice in Miami, later in Delray and in Lake Worth with the Dr. Grady Branford. He came to Belle Glade in 1930.

He was a member of the Alumni Assn. of the University of Western Ontario, of the American Medical Assn., Palm Beach Medical Assn., and Belle Glade Medical Assn.

Before his illness he was on the staff of Belle Glade Memorial Hospital.

Rehearsal Dinner Held

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Bozeman entertained the wedding participants at a rehearsal dinner at Pefka's restaurant, South Bay, Saturday night after the rehearsal.

The table covered with a white linen cloth was centered with an arrangement in a silver compote featuring a double wedding ring made up of pink roses and a smaller Chinese ming tree and a branch.

Miss Crews distributed gifts to her attendants and the Mr. Bozeman presented gifts to the ushers and best man. Other guests were the bride's friend and son, Mr. and Mrs. George Crews of South Bay, Mrs. Ercel Mixson, Mrs. Ralph Kirk and Mrs. John Bass.

CARD OF THANKS

To all my friends who remembered me with cards, phone calls, flowers and personal visits during my recent confinement at St. Mary's Hospital, West Palm Beach. I sincerely appreciate your kindness. To those who prayed for me and with me, I thank you so much. It is nice things like this that makes living in Belle Glade the warmer experience I have had. Thank you most of all for these expressions of love. My wish is that God will richly bless each of you as He has me.

Gratefully yours,

"Eat More Meat" Successful Slogan

Did you know that the U. S. consumer, you and everyone else) spends about one-fourth of his food money for meat?

According to the Economic Research Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Americans spent 16 billion dollars on red meats — beef, pork, veal and lamb — in 1961, or about $277 per family. The total amount spent for meat was more than the combined total of spending household on television, radios and television sets.

Forty years ago the annual per capita amount spent on meat was $34. It bought 134 pounds. Last year the meat bill was nearly three times higher at $90 and bought 161 pounds. We spent only 4.5 per cent of take-home pay for meat in 1961, where as 40 years ago the percentage was 8.7.

Nearly half the meat dollar goes to processors we buy — fees for processing and marketing. What the livestock raiser gets varies from 56 cents for choice beef cuts to 48 cents for choice lamb chops. The hog raiser gets about 53 cents of the retail dollar for pork.

The weighted retail price of meat averaged 30 cents a pound in 1921. In 1961 it was 65 cents, but in the 40-year period per capita income rose from $508 a year after taxes to nearly $600. In 1961 the cost of meat rose only a little more than half as fast as the amount of money consumers had to spend.

BIRTHS

July 20: Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Sanders, Lake Harbor announce the birth of a daughter, June Anita, at Belle Glade Memorial Hospital.

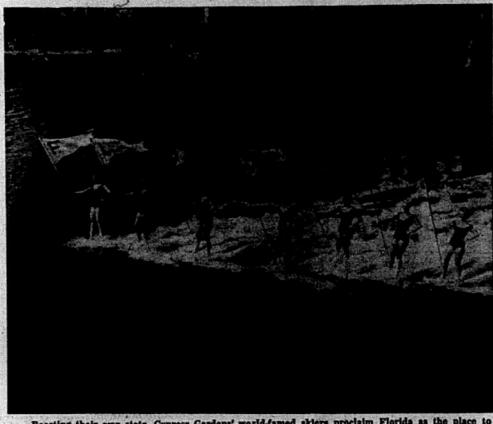

July 21: Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Higginbotham, Belle Glade announce the birth of a son, Alan, at Belle Glade Memorial Hospital.

July 21: Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Paul Graber, Pittsburg, Pa., announced the birth of a son, Ronald Jeffrey. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Bill Graber, Belle Glade.

Rev. and Mrs. Edward M. Stevenson are expected to return to Saturday after vacationing for a week at Clearwater Beach.

See Florida T. V. Summer

Famed Cypress Gardens Performers Boost Florida

Boosting their own state, Cypress Gardens' world-famous skiers proclaim Florida as the place to see this summer as they perform on beautiful Lake Eloise at Winter Haven. The Gardens, one of the state's major attractions, has regular shows in addition to rare flowers and plants. The Gardens are another reason Governor Farris Bryant and the Florida Development Commission are urging Floridians to see their own state this summer.

August 8: Doug Thompson, Jr. James Sheffield, Bobby Schoenfeld.
